GOOD SERMON
Was Discoursed Last Night by the Rev. J. L. Sawyer, Who Was Formerly a Train Dispatcher in Paducah—The Sermon Well Received.

Rev. Joseph L. Sawyer, who preached at the First Presbyterian church last night, is well known in Paducah, where he resided until a few years ago.
He was formerly a train dispatcher for the C. & O. & S. W. and married Miss Mollie Woolfolk, of the city. He will graduate in another year at a theological college of Danville, Ky. His sermon last night was heard by a large crowd, and was most excellent in every respect. His many friends will be pleased to learn of his bright prospects in the ministry.

MAY BE MUSTERED OUT.
It is the opinion of Col. Smith and Major George Saffarans, of the Third Kentucky regiment, now in camp at Lexington, that the regiment will be mustered out after the next pay day, which is not far off.

The boys, or a greater part of them, will then return home, after a summer of hard work, with little glory attached.
It is said in several letters from the boys, written to friends and relatives here, that a number of the Paducah boys expect to join the regular army or navy, as soon as the troops are mustered out.

The Paducah boys and entire Third regiment, would now be at the front but for the stupid delay of the orders sending them there. As it is, they are not certain that they will ever see another pay day.

HOPE WAS ABANDONED

Was the Reason That Manila Surrendered to the Americans, so Says Gen. Jaudenes.

Catholic Archbishop Says Facts Were Misrepresented to Him—He Now Knows Church Property is Safe.

Scripps-McRae Service.
New York, Aug. 22.—The World today prints the following, dated Manila, Aug. 21: Gen. Jaudenes says, "Manila surrendered because hope had been abandoned. Had Camara pushed forward we would have died defending the city. Americans are generous." Nosesales, archbishop Manila, says: "I have favored peace from the beginning. Facts have been misrepresented to us. We know now that church property will be protected and religious rights sustained, while we were lead to believe that just the opposite would be the case."

THE FOURTH WILL REMAIN.

Kentucky's Last Regiment Not to Leave the Commonwealth.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The Fourth Kentucky will remain at Lexington, and will not be sent to Jacksonville. The department has decided to keep the regiment in the state. This does not mean that the Fourth will be mustered out at once, although the determination to keep it in Lexington would argue so much. Col. Colson is still using every influence in his power to have the regiment retained.

Scripps-McRae Service.

The miners in the interior of the Copper River country have adopted resolutions denying the sensational reports of big gold discoveries there.

The English government is preparing to make Esquimault a second Gibraltar and is evidently preparing for a possible war.

John T. Gills Files an Injunction Against Gad Coley.

This forenoon an injunction was filed by John T. Gills against Gad Coley, in the circuit court, restraining him from cutting timber on a farm which the plaintiff rented to him.

The farm is out on the Cairo road, near Woodville.

LETTER FROM CAPT. DAVIS.

Dr. J. T. Reddick is in receipt of a letter from Capt. B. B. Davis, of Co. K, stating that he thinks the Third Regiment will be mustered out in a short time, and saying that he would like to be a candidate for the position of superintendent of construction of the new school building on West Broadway. The position has already been filled, Mr. W. F. Katterjohn having been elected to the place.

CATO IS TO BE HANGED.

The Brutal Murderer of Old Man Askeu Must Expiate His Crime—Verdict By Jury This Morning.

The Date of the Hanging Has Not Been Fixed as Yet—Holly, an Accomplice, Now Serving for Life.

The jury in the case against Will Cato, the young man charged with the murder of Cormick Askeu, who was killed with an ax and tied to a stone and sunk in the Tennessee River near Star Line Works, this morning returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree in the Eddyville circuit court, and fixed his punishment at death.

The date of the execution has not yet been fixed by the court but will be when the prisoner is sentenced.
The arguments in the case against Will Cato, charged with the murder of old man Askeu, the peddler, were finished at Eddyville Saturday night, and the case was given to the jury with the instruction that the verdict would be heard by the court at any time the jury decided the case.

Holly, Cato's accessory, is now serving a life term at Eddyville for the murder. Cato and Holly tell the same story, with the exception that each claims the other killed the helpless peddler, and that the other, at the point of a pistol compelled him to do it. It was the most cold blooded murder that had been committed in many years in Lyon county, and all that saved both from being hanged was the doubt as to which committed the deed. The details of the murder are most revolting, and display a blood thirstiness almost incredible.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES

Brought By the Philadelphia Times in Regard to the Santiago Campaign in General.

Claims That General Miles Was Sidelined By the Suppression of Orders, and Miles Won the Victory.

Scripps-McRae Service.
Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 22.—The Times this morning prints some sensational charges in connection with the Santiago campaign and alleges that the original intention of the war department was that General Miles should command the campaign, but that he was held back by intrigue and by the suppression of orders. It also states Shafter's demand for the city's surrender with the threat of bombardment was made on General Miles' order after Shafter had telegraphed that he needed reinforcements before he could take the town and would have to retreat in the meantime.

JOLLY TO THE FRONT

Carries Henderson, Hopkins and Webster County Conventions Saturday.

Now Has More Votes Than Fowler—Things Getting Hot in the Second—Convention Soon.

The Owensboro Messenger says: Jolly turned the tables on the Franks crowd Saturday by carrying the Republican county conventions in Henderson, Hopkins and Webster counties by sweeping majorities. It was a stunning surprise to the Franks people, who thought Fowler would win easily, especially in Henderson county.

By carrying these counties Jolly runs up ahead of Fowler with 67 delegate votes. Fowler had already carried Christian and Union with 67 votes. Daviess, Hancock and McLean will hold conventions next Saturday, and the district convention will be at Henderson on the 29th. Daviess has 31 votes and therefore will decide the contest. This county being the final battlefield unusual interest will be felt in the convention next Saturday.

WRITTEN

AT RANDOM.

If there is any indication that a person is contented in this life, it is the fact that he has remained at home nearly all through his career, whether it be eventful or otherwise. And if this be any indication of contentment Uncle Jack Dotson ought to be a mighty contented man.

"Uncle" Jack and his wife, "Aunt Sallie," have been married sixty-one years, and they have spent their long and useful life at Dukedom, Graves county. Nineteen children have blessed their union, but the most remarkable thing about them is that "Uncle" Jack has not been four miles from Dukedom since a few years after the civil war. More exactly, for over twenty-five years he has never been farther away from home than four miles. And the last time he was away from home was when he came to Paducah over 25 years ago. The couple are enjoying good health, and are among the oldest persons in their community and respected by all.

The authorities are generally conceded to be right in taking steps to abolish the nefarious custom of females visiting saloons, or the so-called restaurants, connected with them, which is practically the same thing, and equally as demoralizing. In Paducah no lady would dare venture into such places, unless she resides in the building. It would not be considered ladylike here for a woman to go into a saloon, especially for the purpose of drinking, or into the restaurant connected with them. Hence as a rule the only women who frequent such places are disreputable characters—creating a trade that has of the saloon keepers care to cater to. There are resorts in the city where these soulless sirens have hitherto held full sway with impunity. They go there either to pray on the hapless victims who drop in for a drink or lunch, or else to hold high carnival until the midnight hour, with male prostitutes, and keep the locality in a constant turmoil with their disgraceful orgies until dawn. It is at these unscrupulous parasites that the law is directed, not at the saloon keeper. The only saloon keepers who have evaded any desire to contest the validity of the law are those who ponder to such patronage. The authorities are weary of it, and intend to break it up. If such females desire to drink, they can send to the saloons for what they want. If their male admirers desire to meet them, they can meet them somewhere else. The careers of these combination bawdy houses, saloons and gambling dens have ended, and the time is approaching when only a legitimate saloon business may be carried on in Paducah.

Reputable saloon-keepers will hail the arrival of this time with gladness, for the kind of resorts the police are now trying to break up are the kind that have brought the saloon business into disrepute. Women must no longer be used as an attraction to saloon trade, or as a feature of diversion for the customers who frequent questionable places. A man who runs a saloon, bawdy house and gambling resort under one license under the new law.

Capt. "Billy" Purcell, the veteran railroad conductor who is now visiting relatives here, has been on the road for over thirty years, and he was never in but two train robberies, or "hold-ups."

The first time was on the old N. & M. V., now the Illinois Central, when he first went on the road, years ago. The train was held up between Pryorsburg and Wingo, below Mayfield, and looted by robbers. Doubtless many people remember the robbery, which created quite a sensation at the time.

For years Capt. Purcell punched tickets on the railroad without another such exciting incident as a robbery, but the other day he had his second experience, on the Santa Fe, where he is now employed. The train suddenly stopped three miles from Dallas, Tex., and in a few moments it dawned on him that it was being held up. Cramming his face back watch down his chest and rushed through the train and shouted that robbers were aboard, and warned everybody to secrete their valuables. Women began hiding their pocketbooks, watches and other valuables under seats and in satchels and grips, some of them tearing their diamond earrings out of their frenzied haste.

MUNICIPAL MATTERS.

Officers Atkins and Lescher have both been off of the night force on account of illness for a few nights.

An ordinance is to be introduced at the next council meeting prescribing a penalty for representatives of one local house going in and getting customers from some other house. This form of "diversion" has been the past prevalent, especially on Second street.

May Clumfoot, three other females, with more avoidous than brains, and a small boy, were sent to Danville, Tenn., Saturday on the steamer Tennessee. The first named is the creature who was arrested in a Court street saloon Friday night under the new ordinance, and while the females were all more or less "green" in many respects, their familiarity with wicked ways was something awful.

There is a handsome new cabinet in Mayor Lang's office at the city hall, where it was placed Saturday. It is of oak, and is the handiwork of Mr. Milt Ingram, the well known contractor. It contains a drawer, properly labelled, for the chairman of every committee of the council.

Yesterday morning early all the garbage and decaying vegetables were collected and hauled away from the market house before the average citizen was up. The improvement was one duly appreciated, especially by the residents of "Wall street."

Anderson Miller, the well-known ex-constable, was in the city today for the first time in several weeks. He has been ill at his home near Maxon's Mills for the past three months of fever, and is just able to be out. He was warmly welcomed by his many friends here.

Mayor Lang is in receipt of a communication from the League of American Municipalities, congratulating Paducah for being the only Kentucky city represented in the national congress at Detroit, which the mayor recently attended. The League is very anxious to have Paducah become a member and a resolution will doubtless be introduced at the next meeting of the council to have Paducah become a member.

The interest on the old city bonds, just refunded, will cease on the 25th inst., and by that time, it is likely that all of them will be paid off. The $45,000 with which to do this arrived a day or two ago, and is at the bank. The new bonds are in the hands of the syndicate which refunded them.

Ella Jones was warranted this morning on a warrant charging her with striking another woman.

Belle Edwards, for a similar offense, was warranted, the plaintiff being Ellen Cousin.

Chief Prichard, of Evansville, was in the city Saturday night en route from Memphis, and saw Luther Drake, one of the negroes charged in the police court this morning with carrying concealed a pistol. He recognized Drake, and Drake was of the opinion that the negro was wanted in Evansville. He left promising to notify Marshal Collins by telegraph when he reached home, whether the darkey is wanted in Evansville or not.

A prominent railroader said today: The farmers have the largest wheat crop they have had since republicanism was decried in 1854, and best prices prevail. They also have fine prospects for a tobacco crop with good prices. Certainly prosperity smiles down upon the G. O. P., and every act of McKinleyism. The farmers say they have been able to cultivate double the acreage of tobacco on account of scarcity of worms.

PACKING COTTON.

New Cylindrical Bales Resist Destructive Work of Flammes.

The new method of cotton packing—closely compact cylindrical bales—will, it is thought, become in time one of general adoption. It has been demonstrated by repeated showings that cotton can be put up in cylindrical bales in so dense a form as to render it a practical impossibility to burn it the surface can be scorched but beyond this, through the absence of the needed oxygen, fire will not penetrate. Under the ordinary system of packing, notwithstanding the bales are compressed, sufficient oxygen is still retained in and through them to give vitality to a fire. Thus a spark from a cigar, a match, or a smoldering coal will fall upon a bale of cotton and start a fire.

FIRST DREDGE INVENTED.

Two Yoke of Oxen Used in Operating the Apparatus.

Mr. William F. J. Boardman, of this city, has in his possession letters patent issued by the United States July 31, 1892. They bear the autographs of two presidents, Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. At the time of the issue Mr. Jefferson was president and Mr. Madison was the secretary of state. Levi Lincoln was the attorney-general of the United States. The patent was issued to John Greenleaf, a citizen of Massachusetts, and the document has been in the Greenleaf family most of the time since 1802. The wife of Mr. Boardman belonged to this Massachusetts family and the letters patent came to Mr. Boardman through her intervention.

The patent was issued on what was called by the inventor a dock-scraper, or machine for cleaning out docks. It was the first notion of the present dredge used in cleaning out the beds of rivers and harbors. The machine was a large rake and hoe combined, weighing about "1,100 weight." The construction included an oak plank 8 feet long, 13 inches wide and 6 inches thick. Across the plank on the front side and at right angles with it were 18 iron bars, 1 1/2 inches square and 25 inches long, which were let into the plank by grooves at equal distances and bolted. These bars projected 7 inches below the plank and were pointed and sharpened at the lower end, the device in this shape forming a rake. The same bars projected 5 inches above the upper edge of the plank, and a strip of iron 8 feet long, 5 inches wide and 1 inch thick was fixed in contact with the upper edge of the plank and secured by a bolt through each of the bars. This strip of iron was feather-edged, and when the machine was invented, a hoe on a large scale was formed. The shank or handle of the machine was made of four iron bars, which at a distance of four feet were welded together. The whole length of the shank from the scraper was 8 feet.

The power used in dragging this apparatus was on land and consisted of cattle, wind or water, or any other power that might be utilized. The scraper, when loaded, was dragged to the channel or stream opposite the dock and the mud was carried off by the current. The inventor, with 2 yoke of oxen, 5 men and 3 boys cleared out of a dock at "Newbury Port" 8,000 tons of mud in 17 days. Sometimes he carried out 20 tons of mud at one haul.

The application for the patent was made at Newburyport March 2, 1802. The witnesses to the signature of Mr. Greenleaf were Charles Jackson and Samuel Savett. The letters patent bear the seal of the United States in itself one of the most interesting of devices. These letters patent are among the oldest in the United States. Mr. Boardman, who is an enthusiastic collector, has one of the most valuable collections of curios to be found in New England.—Hartford Times.

PACKING COTTON.

New Cylindrical Bales Resist Destructive Work of Flammes.

The new method of cotton packing—closely compact cylindrical bales—will, it is thought, become in time one of general adoption. It has been demonstrated by repeated showings that cotton can be put up in cylindrical bales in so dense a form as to render it a practical impossibility to burn it the surface can be scorched but beyond this, through the absence of the needed oxygen, fire will not penetrate. Under the ordinary system of packing, notwithstanding the bales are compressed, sufficient oxygen is still retained in and through them to give vitality to a fire. Thus a spark from a cigar, a match, or a smoldering coal will fall upon a bale of cotton and start a fire.

cotton during the process of packing or shipping and work its way down toward the interior of the package, and, though it may be weeks before any evidence of its presence is felt, it sometimes finds its way at the end of that time, and with greatly added vigor, to the surface of the bale, disastrous consequences perhaps ensuing. This is a liability which the process of cylindrical baling must, it is declared, entirely obviate; and, further, the cotton fibre is not torn, as it is under present management in baling and covering, while, in the important matter of shipment, the space required for carrying a given quantity of cotton can be materially reduced.

HIS OWN MEDICINE.

A Practical Joker Chafes Under a Joke Played Upon Him.

Having been married less than a month, it would naturally be supposed that Binley was one of the happiest men in the country. But he's not. He broods and schemes and indulges in long exorcisms. He would give half his fortune to get his grip upon a certain person or persons unknown.

Of course there is a story back of this. Binley married a Philadelphia girl. He went on there the day before the wedding, and in going about the city he noticed that he was being shadowed. Having a character above reproach, this did not bother him much at first, but the thing grew very annoying when he was followed to the house of his fiancée and found the shadows awaiting him when he left. In trying to dodge them he whetted their suspicion and was promptly arrested.

At the station house Binley gave his name and was then informed that he was known. Word had been wired from the chief of police in Detroit that Binley had gone to Philadelphia to make a big haul and expected to leave with a treasure that would satisfy
